

SCI-FI NIGHT

Saturday 20 MARCH 2004

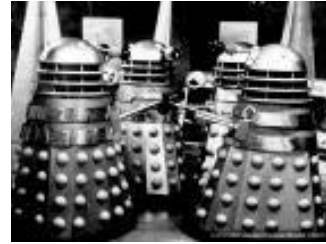

Memorial Hall, Betws-y-Coed, 7pm

Bass Invaders

Blinkers

the Dalek with old friends...

Real Institute presents a themed science-fiction evening of short-films and music at Betws-y-coed Memorial Hall on 20 March 2004 at 7pm.

The evening is billed as a cabaret extravaganza of sci-fi shorts plus live music, comedy compere, outmoded computer games, real-life Dalek and preposterous green chocolate cake.

Marvel! at armageddon space-invader style, Smile! as wee animals take a bumblebee rocket to the moon, Wonder! at sickly robots, ray-guns, holograms, spurious beeping noises and outrageous costumes - from lo-fi bedroom masterpieces to infuriatingly big-budget numbers, these are some of the best visions of the future in independent film with many award winners including:

'Bass Invaders' by Simon Ellis where the chunky graphics and annoying soundtrack of ancient arcade games make a 'real-life' earth invasion.

'Blinkers' by Jake Major, a futuristic animation in which everyone wears blinkers which transmit targeted advertising and entertainment.

'Metalstasis' by Matthew Hood, where a mechanical man finds his routine disturbed by illness from an unusual source.

Caernarfon's Ryan Jones is compere for the evening's entertainment which includes live music from north Wales' own John Lawrence (ex. Gorky's Zycotic Mynci).
